

BURNED HIS CHECKS

J. S. Gumburg Sets Fire to Paper Valued at $5,000.

QUEST ACT OF A YOUNG ENGLISHMAN AT THE POST-OFFICE.

The Post-Office Authorities Would Surrender the Checks to Him Unless Given Proof of His Identity, and in His Anger He Destroyed the Valuable Paper.

Shortly after 9 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 30 a young man, apparently 24 years of age, attired in a Prince Albert suit of clothes, tan shoes, a silk tie and sporting a gold-headed cane, entered the Post-Office, presented himself at Hurst's Hotel and asked for the best room in the house, explaining that he had a heart of gold but none in his pockets. Chief Clerk Hogan informed him that he would assign him a room, but that he would have to pay for the same before 4 o'clock, which he agreed to do. He stated that he was from Calcutta, but registered from Minneapolis under the name of J. S. Gumburg. He was assigned to room 27, after which he left the hotel, informing Mr. Hogan that he would return later in the day, as he had to go to the post-office and leave instructions where to leave his mail, as he was looking for some very important letters.

LETTERS CONTAINING $5,000. At 11 o'clock there was delivered at the hotel four registered letters for Mr. Gumburg, all from Kookuk, Io., valued at $5,000. Clerk Hogan refused to receive the letters as he did not wish to continue the responsibility and returned them to the Post-Office, informing the carrier that Mr. Gumburg would call for them where he would have an opportunity to identify himself. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the handsome young foreigner put in an appearance at the hotel and asked for his mail. He was informed that it had been returned to the Post-Office. He became very indignant, and after upbraiding Mr. Hogan, left the house, stating that he did not want the room at any price. He went direct to the Post-Office, where he made a request for his letters to Assistant Postmaster Sample. Being unable to identify himself the registered letters were refused him, whereupon he telephoned Mr. Western Bascom, the English Consul at St. Louis, to come to his aid. Mr. Sample made a request for his letters to Assistant Postmaster Sample. Being unable to identify himself the registered letters were refused him, whereupon he telephoned Mr. Western Bascom, the English Consul at St. Louis, to come to his aid. Mr. Sample made a request for his letters to Assistant Postmaster Sample. Being unable to identify himself the registered letters were refused him, whereupon he telephoned Mr. Western Bascom, the English Consul at St. Louis, to come to his aid.

MR. SAMPLE'S STATEMENT. Mr. Sample was seen at his office to-day and asked to verify the story. He said: "The parts as you have them are in the main correct. The young man came to me for his letters, which I gave him, but he refused to give me the checks. He took a memorandum of the check and burned them before my eyes. I think the young man is all right and believe the money belonged to him, but I did not know him. He was not personally responsible in case the money was turned over to the wrong party. The English Consul has called on me several times in regard to the matter, but he does not know Gumburg any better than I do and consequently could not consistently help him out of his predicament. I have worked on this case harder and have taken more pains with it than any case that has come up in my department since I have been connected with the Post-Office, and I think the young man should appreciate my efforts in endeavoring to do the right thing by him. I anticipate no further trouble in the matter as I have done all in my power, within the limits of the law, to see that he got his just dues, and if he has not it is not the fault of this department."

Mr. Bascom, the English Consul, will take no action in the matter, he being thoroughly disgusted with Gumburg's conduct. He called on me Saturday last and stated that he was a British subject and had been assigned by Lord Dufferin, the British Ambassador at Paris. When I asked him what he wanted with a passport in this country, he replied that he had been all over the world and had occasion to use it in the countries he passed through and the country he was going to. He told me his tale of woe and requested a loan of $5,000, which I did not grant his request nor would I identify him at the post-office. I instructed him how to get money and he left my office. Last night he returned and informed me that he had received money by cable and would leave town at once. I don't know where he went and I don't care much, as I never took any interest in him, as his story appeared rather fishy to me."

UPSET IN THE RIVER.

Two Men Drowned—Dramatic Rescue of Two Others.

Joseph Franklin, living at 1335 South Second street, and Herman Kiemer, living at 1035 South Second street, were drowned this morning at 1 o'clock under the Eads bridge. The two men who were drowned, in company with William Adams of 1334 South Second street, and Joseph O. Zorvinski of 1335 South Second street, had started fishing in the river at an early hour last night in a boat owned by Herman Kiemer. After fishing on the east side for a while they decided to come to this side, pulling a seine behind them. When about two blocks north of the Eads bridge they were passed by a stern wheel tow boat on her way down the river. The seine was full of water, and the boat was upset, causing her to capsize.

The screams of the four men and three shots fired by a man on the bridge awakened the men along the levee. Charles Botz, who was on the bridge, saw the boat and two cabin boys of the same boat took a yawl and reached Adams and Zorvinski, speaking of the rescue this morning, said: "I was sleeping at the time, and I heard a scream which seemed to be on the bridge, then I heard three shots, and getting up, I found the screams were coming nearer and were from men out on the river. I went on the boat with me, and getting our yawl, which was full of water, to keep from being started out in the direction of the Eads bridge."

"Adams was the first man we came too, and he was the last to be rescued. He was on the boat, and as soon as we came alongside of him, he grabbed me by the arm and pulled me over the side. I was full of water, and I was not having taken the time to bail it out. I knew that if he put his weight on the side of the boat, it would sink, and I pulled my revolver, and placing it against his head, said: 'Keep quiet, and we will save you. If you don't I'll blow your head off.' He promised and we pulled him over the stern. Zorvinski tried to grab hold and I told him the same thing and he promised to do just as I told him and we got him and brought the pair ashore at Chestnut street. The river was awful rough in tow-boat harbor, and we passed down. Had either of the men persisted in clinging to our boat it would have been all day long in the direction of the Eads bridge."

A THOUSAND MEN OUT.

Shut Down of the Westinghouse Works for Repairs. PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 6.—The Westinghouse Air-Brake Co. has suspended operations entirely at its works at Wilmerding, enforcing idleness on between 900 and 1,000 men. The shut-down will continue about three weeks, during which time extensive repairs and improvements in machinery will be made. The works will resume at that time, but on account of the unusual condition of business it is not now expected that the company can re-engage its entire force of workmen.

ROLLING-MILL STRIKE. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 6.—A strike is now on among the tonnage men at the Springfield rolling-mill, caused by a reduction of 10 per cent in wages. The men of the other departments also threaten to strike if the demands of the tonnage men are not acceded to. The mill ordinarily employs 50 or 60 men, but for some time has been running on short time with a greatly reduced force.

DENIED A REJECTION. WALLACE, Idaho, Oct. 6.—The union miners on Cannon Creek have decided to go on with the strike and not accept the tender of the mine owners for $3.50 for the miners and $3 for car men and shovelers. The Butte Union which has loaned the local unions here considerable money, sent delegates who demanded that the strike be carried on.

WILL ACCEPT REDUCTION. DENVER, Colo., Oct. 6.—The voting of the Rio Grande men on the proposition of President Jeffery to reduce the salaries 10 per cent was in favor of the reduction. Every indication is that the men will accept the reduction.

WAS FAMILY DAY.

Another Large Gathering at the Fair Grounds To-Day.

It looked yesterday as if everybody in town had been to the fair and there would be no more left for to-day, but such was not the fact. A great many St. Louis people who knew what big Thursday meant held off a day and came out bright and early this morning, having avoided the rush. Family parties of considerable number were in order. It is impossible to get a reliable estimate of yesterday's attendance, as the clerks are still at work counting the tickets. The expert judges of crowds, or those who consider themselves such, vary so many thousands in their estimates that their figures are practically worthless.

A stock breeder came into the Secretary's office this morning in a great hurry and went up to one of the clerks. "How can I get word down to the tavern?" he asked. "Where is the place?" asked the clerk. The stockman mentioned the hotel and the clerk informed him that he could step inside the telephone box and telephone. The stockman blushed visibly through his sun-burnt skin and answered: "No, sir, you can't get me to fool with that arrangement. I ain't never used no telephone, and ain't a goin' to neither."

Mr. Louis Brush has been judging cattle all alone this year, and his awards so far have given unqualified satisfaction. Heretofore it has been the custom to pick up three judges from almost anywhere and let them ballot on the merits of the various animals. Mr. Brush, on the other hand, has made a study of cattle of all kinds, and is probably the best judge of such matters in the country. This, at least, is the unanimous opinion of all the cattle exhibitors at the fair, and they intend expressing it in a testimonial signed by every one who has any cattle on exhibition.

A special premium of $100 has been put up to be competed for in the horse ring to-morrow immediately upon the conclusion of the saddle ring awards. It is divided into a first prize of $75, a second of $20 and a third prize of $5, and is for what is known as High School Riding. This includes all the fancy paces the modern saddle is taught and verges on circus work. The horses go sideways and backwards and almost every other imaginable way. This prize was put up because there were a great many high school horses which could not be given a fair chance under the rules which barred the fancy horses. The horses displayed with great effect upon the audience.

Notes. The exhibit by the Moses P. Johnson Machinery Co. of 715-717 North Second street pleases dealers and farmers. This concern is general Western agent for Gaar, Scott & Co. of Richmond, Ind., and the display includes one ten-horse-horsepower traction engine, one fifteen-horsepower engine, a duplicate of the one at the World's Fair, one clover-baler, two separators and also the "Cyclone" stacker, which attracts much attention.

"Parrhasius" To-Night. "Parrhasius," the new tragedy Mr. Mantel produces for the first time in St. Louis to-night, has launched that young actor firmly into the field of tragedy, and judging from the satisfactory audiences he has had this week in "Othello" and "Hamlet" he is destined to become as popular as a tragedian as he has been in romantic roles.
